ABSTRACT

A system for generating transactions on a bus includes at least one instruction memory storing predefined bus stimuli instructions and at least one phase generator coupled between the bus and the instruction memory for providing signals to the bus in response to the instruction memory.

5